

LIQUIDATOR'S ANNOUNCEMENT

This notice is to all passengers and creditors of Citywing Aviation Services Limited.

I can confirm that I was formally appointed as Liquidator of the Company at a meeting of Creditors held on the 24th March 2017. It has become apparent almost immediately that there are no options available to me as Liquidator to transfer passengers to other carriers, as such the company will not be able to directly or indirectly honour your booking.

In due course I will, following the appropriate notice as detailed by Isle of Man Company Law, give all creditors and passengers an opportunity to file a claim against the company. The notices will appear in various media publications as recommended by the aforementioned legislation. In order to maximise the opportunities for creditors and passengers alike to gain access to this documentation those notices, together with the relevant proof of debt form, will also be available to download from this website.

Unfortunately, due to the nature of liquidations and the specific complexities of this case, I cannot give a date at this time as to when those claims will be paid. The reality is it could be many months before I am in a position to make payments to creditors, as such passengers are advised in the first instance to try and reclaim their fares from their respective banks, credit card companies and/or travel insurance as this may prove to be a more expedient way of obtaining a refund. Please note that successful claims from those sources will be rejected as proofs in the liquidation. This notice should be sufficient to assist you with your claim against said providers.
